Dear Mr. Bibby:

I stayed in New York a week after the jury meeting for the National Scholastic awards and since my return to Chicago, I have intended writing you to thank you for what a pleasant and interesting experience you made of those first two days in New York.

The train ride both ways was delightful and I enjoyed my stay at the Biltmore so much that I shall always stop at that hotel in the future. The judging of the pictures was most rewarding and seeing the photographs gave me more hope for what to expect in the future. I was impressed by what I saw of a whole world of photography about which I am curious and which I had not had a previous opportunity to look into. On the Friday before my Sunday departure, I returned to the Scholastic offices to look at the photographs chosen by the other jurors which I had not seen before. I enjoyed this very much and hope you are satisfied with the entire selection. As for myself, I should like to own prints of some and may impose on you in the near future and take advantage of your offer to help me obtain prints.

As you asked me to do, I am enclosing an itemization of expenses during the days of the jury duty.

If you are in Chicago at any time, I hope you stop to see me at the Art Institute. It would be a pleasure to talk with you again.

Yours sincerely,

Hugh Edwards, Curator of Photography.
